Legal Notice

The person/entity that enters the project provides mBank with information and materials making up the project description voluntarily, on his/her/its own initiative and is fully liable for doing so.

mBank reserves the right not to inform the entities that contact it that it is working on, developing or implementing solutions similar to the project on its own or in cooperation with other entities. As a result, mBank may not be interested in an entered project and is not obliged to give the reason for such lack of interest.

mBank is not liable for improper identification of the owner of proprietary rights concerning the idea or solution making up the essence of the project or a part thereof. The person/entity entering the project is fully liable for misleading mBank by failing to specify the real owner of proprietary rights or a patent concerning the entered idea or solution.

If the person/entity entering the project fails to correctly indicate the persons or entities being the owners of the proprietary rights or patents concerning the ideas or solutions entered, the person/entity entering the project accepts that if mBank is confronted with any claims of third parties for violation of their proprietary rights or patents to the idea or solution, mBank S.A. will redirect the claims against such person or entity, while the person/entity entering the project is obliged to immediately take measures that are necessary to investigate the case and to satisfy at their own expense any third-party claims for any violation of proprietary rights or patents. The liability of the person/entity entering the project is not limited to the jurisdiction of the Republic of Poland.

The person/entity entering the project accepts that if mBank is confronted with any claims or charges as a result of having been misled by such person or entity, mBank may disclose the entry of the project and all the details related thereto to authorised parties.
